

“He gets angry for no reason... he just goes off!”

“My mom keeps asking me the same questions, and it makes me upset.”

Are you caring for a person with dementia and dealing with these or other behaviors you find challenging?

The Dementia Behavior Study may be right for you.

A research study evaluating ways of helping families address challenging behaviors of persons with dementia who are living at home.

Study participation involves:

- 3 Home Interviews with you and the person with dementia (at beginning of study, and then 3 and 6 months later)
- Random assignment to one of two groups; both groups receive up to 8 home visits with a research staff member to learn strategies that may be helpful in caring for a person with dementia
- Participation is FREE and voluntary
- Families receive up to $45 for completing the three home interviews

For more information
please call:

443-287-4595

Principal Investigator: Laura N. Gitlin, Ph.D.

IRB #NA_00067873, Clinical Trial #NCT01892579
Funded by the National Institute on Aging grant
#NIH R01AGO41781

Approved Oct. 28, 2013

